MOST DANGER FROM REPUBLICANSTells Crowd at Meeting That Democrats Will Protect Industry

L. L. McCandless charged, in a political speech last night, that there is more danger to sugar in Hawaii from a Republican administration than from a Democratic administration. He declared that in his opinion Delegate Kuhio is responsible for the Underwood free sugar bill passing the House. He asserted that the next governor of Hawaii will be Democratic, and he said that he ought to be elected to Congress in order to protect the people.

The speech was delivered during the course of a meeting in the Ninth precinct of the Fourth district that "Soapbox" Barron got up. Barron promoted the meeting, introduced the speakers, acted as master of ceremonies and generally managed to absorb most of the limelight. It was one of the biggest meetings of the Democratic party during the campaign to date; in fact, Barron says it was the biggest meeting the Democrats have had. He estimated that there were over six hundred people there. Other estimates make it about 450, and the majority were women and children, but there were a considerable number of voters also. The meeting was held at the corner of Kukui and Fort streets and McCandless was the principal speaker.

"The Republican platform says that the party is for revision of the tariff downward, and the Democratic platform says that it is for revision of the tariff in such a way that it isn't going to hurt legitimate industry," said Link, in explaining why there is more danger to Hawaii's sugar from a Republican than from a Democratic administration. "Now I believe that sugar is a legitimate industry, and this shows you, gentlemen, that the Republicans would revise the sugar tariff down but the Democrats would protect sugar."

"Why did the Underwood free sugar bill pass the house, gentlemen? I have my opinion and that opinion is that it's the delegate to Congress who is a Republican, and he had something to do with that bill passing the house. That's the way I figure it out, and others do, too."

"We ain't going to get free sugar if you send a Democratic delegate. Vote for L. L. McCandless and he will represent you right."

Mr. McCandless took occasion to refer at some length to the Star-Bulletin's attitude, as expressed editorially yesterday. He told the crowd that an "intelligent paper" had said that if Hawaii should elect a Democratic delegate to Congress it would be an endorsement of Democratic principles, and that those principles were expressed by the last House action for free sugar.

"Now what do you think of that for an intelligent paper, gentlemen?" he asked in gloved tones. "Ain't that foolish? Why, you all know that I'm not against the sugar industry or the sugar tariff. You all know that the Democratic central committee opposed free sugar. Why, you've got to elect a Democratic delegate because the next president of the United States is going to be a Democrat."

McCandless took up the land laws, attacking Delegate Kuhio because, he asserted, the latter made complaints but "never done anything yet." He continued in a similarly logical and grammatical strain for half an hour, taking occasion to deny stories that charged him with being a land thief.

C. W. Ashford spoke at some length. Ashford attacked a number of the Republican candidates, scoring particularly J. M. Dowsett, George F. Renton and A. L. Castle, who he declared, are tied up with "the big interests" against the common people. Several typical soapbox orators were also tapped for copious flows of language.

Progress and prosperity as only existing under the true banner of the Republican party was the slogan that rang forth in about every address made by local candidates from the platform at the corner of Punahele and Luso streets last night, the occasion being a Republican rally for the benefit of the densely populated Punchbowl district.

At one time a thousand people, men, women and children gathered about the speakers and listened to the melody from a band of singers and players. Between extolling the virtues of the several Republican candidates for election, praising the Portuguese residents upon the conspicuous absence of any evidence of race suicide, jollying the children, and firing verbal broadsides into local Democracy, three hours of entertainment were provided those who remained at the gathering.

A. D. Castro set the ball to rolling. He spoke both in English and Portuguese. Castro was followed by W. K. Serpa, a young man who made a success as an active chairman of the gathering.

Young Punchbowl fairly swarmed over the place allotted for the gathering under Republican auspices. A liberal sprinkling of those of opposite faith appeared in the crowd, judging from the pungent asides and interruptions offered some speakers, as they touched however lightly upon vital subjects.

The youngsters monopolized the speakers platform, but there was none among the leaders who had the hardihood to attempt to banish the youth and flower of the hillside district from the coveted vantage point with the spell binders.

According to Norman Watkins the Republican party had been the means of Honolulu enjoying city and county government. Much power had been added to the counties. He told of the wave of prosperity that was sweeping over the islands and in his opinion times were never better. Watkins declared that the people who suffered at the time of the wholesale crusade against the luscious banana would receive just compensation when the Republicans returned to power in both houses.

Bananas And Big Business. Big business and bananas were topics ever to the fore at the gathering. All speakers apparently took delight in dwelling upon these matters dear to the heart of the dweller in the Paradise of the Pacific.

Clarence Cooke, stated that while he represented a large estate in these islands, at least one hundred thousand dollars was being expended in Honolulu in new buildings under his jurisdiction. Citizen labor only was being employed. He expressed delight at the invasion of the children and believed that by their attendance grains of Republican truths would fall upon fertile fields and take root to the betterment of the people.

Mr. Cooke included in his scope all the blessings ranging from the Panama canal to the full dinner pail. He laid considerable stress on the possibility of more business for the port of Honolulu with the opening of the great American waterway. All will go well with Hawaii and Honolulu if the Republicans are elected.

In three languages John Kamanouu a candidate for the house told his listeners that with his election the working men would fare exceedingly well. He sidestepped the slippery and elusive banana but dwelt upon the prosperity that was to continue in the land as long as no change in administration was imminent. In the Kamanouu address, Portuguese, Hawaiian and English was freely employed. He urged the support of the voters.

There was much joy among the ladies as A. Q. Marcallino declared himself for woman suffrage. He also tackled the banana issue to the intense interest of the thirty small farmers whose premises were benefit of the fruit. Following the campaign against the Stegomia Calopus, female suffrage and the passage of a measure to recompense banana growers were two blessings that Marcallino would confer on mankind while he believed that the Democrats never had or could make good along these lines.

A square deal for the working man was promised all who supported the Republican ticket by Charles Costa, who has charge of Honolulu's garbage department. He hoped that the voters would not overlook his name when they marked a ballot for deputy sheriff.

Charles Chillingworth was contentedly puffing at his pipe away back in the crowd when he was singled out to add a few grains of encouragement to the cause. The former Republican senator dwelt upon baseball matters and drew a lesson in team work for the accomplishment of great ends. He too believed that an appropriation sufficient to settle damage done banana fields would pass the next legislature.

James H. Boyd candidate for the house also added a few remarks which met with appreciation by the Republicans present.

Three cheers for the G. O. P. were proposed by the leaders, the acclaim being taken up by the children with much gusto.

The Democrats last night finished their political meeting at Waikiki-kai, which was interrupted on Monday evening by rain. The attendance was rather slim.

E. H. Paris was one of the most successful of the speakers at the Republican meetings at Waipahu and Ewa last night. Paris gave a straightforward talk on good administration from the standpoint of an aspirant for the supervisorship.

The following election inspectors have been appointed by the Governor for the Sixth Precinct of the Fifth Representative District: D. K. Nuanu, A. M. Simpson and Vivian Richardson.

RHEUMATIC WEATHER. Don't be surprised if you have an attack of rheumatism this spring. Just rub the affected parts freely with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it will soon disappear. Sold by all dealers. Benson, Smith & Co., Ltd., agents for Hawaii.

Fire destroyed the car repair shops of the Des Moines (Iowa) City Railway company, causing a loss of $100,000.

REPUBLICANS IN BIG MEETING
AT EWA

Republican campaigners held one of the most successful meetings of the fall last night, when they gathered at a big rally at Ewa. Campaign exaggeration aside, the meeting was a big one and the hundreds who attended showed real enthusiasm. The Republican cause looks very strong in this section of the island, according to reports received at party headquarters both yesterday and today.

George F. Renton, senatorial candidate, presided and introduced the speakers to the audience. He said that the Republican party stands for progressive ideas, and emphasized the fact that if elected, the candidates will stand by the platform. He was cheered most enthusiastically. The Hawaiians present called out at the top of their voices "polelei."

Col. Sam Parker, for mayor, was likewise cheered as he mounted the stand to make his maiden speech before the Ewa-ites. Captain Robert P. Waipa, for sheriff, made a brief and ringing speech to the audience. He said, if elected, he will discharge the duties of the office of sheriff faithfully.

C. G. Bartlett, candidate for supervisor, assured the people of his intention to give a good administration.

A. L. Castle, candidate for representative, made a strong appeal to the voters to support the entire Republican ticket. He pointed out to them that under the Republican administration, the Territory has conducted the affairs of the government efficiently. He urged upon the hearers to give their undivided support to the Republican candidates. He, too, was given prolonged cheers and applause as he concluded.

Chas. Kanekoa, well known among the Hawaiians, told them that the Republican party invited all to join the Republican party and help support its candidates. (Polelei).

A. S. Kaleipu, for senator, told of his experience as a law maker and urged the audience, and particularly the voters, to give him and his running mates their support on election day. He was applauded with "spree kee."

George Smithies, candidate for treasurer, promised to administer the duties of the office of treasurer efficiently.

The candidates returned late last night very much satisfied with the reception received at the hands of the voters of Ewa.

REPUBLICAN SPEAKERS AT LEILEHUA TODAY

A squadron of automobiles will early this afternoon take to the construction camp at Leilehua a number of Republican campaign speakers. Sam Parker, candidate for mayor against Fern and Hustace, will address the meeting, as will also E. H. Paris, A. L. Castle, Capt. Parker, John Enos, David Notley and Geo. Smithies. William Crawford will act as interpreter.

MISREPRESENTATION IN JAPAN AND AMERICA

The fact that America is as much misrepresented in Japan as Japan is in America was brought out by K. S. Inui, the Japanese lecturer and peace advocate making a round-the-world tour, who spoke at the Central Union Church last night before a large audience on "The East versus the West."

The East and West are both misrepresented in England and Germany and by one another according to the lecturer, and that yellow sheet is largely responsible for the war scare talk, which Mr. Inui declares is ridiculous.

He went on to say that in modern times no nation can do without the other, and with every nation having large financial interests so closely connected that all are essential to the mutual well-being, peace is an essential. There must be unity to have prosperity and this is realized in Japan as well as in America.

"In America," said Mr. Inui, "the talk is that Japan is preparing to invade America, she is getting a foothold on Hawaii and she will soon land an army on the shores of California. At the same time in Japan we could say: Look at America; first the people of the nation drive the Indians off the land. Then the rebels from the mother country form thirteen States and force Spain to sell Florida. Louisiana is next obtained from France and then Mexico is forced to cede Texas and a large piece of Territory. Then California falls into the hands of Americans and Oregon is claimed."

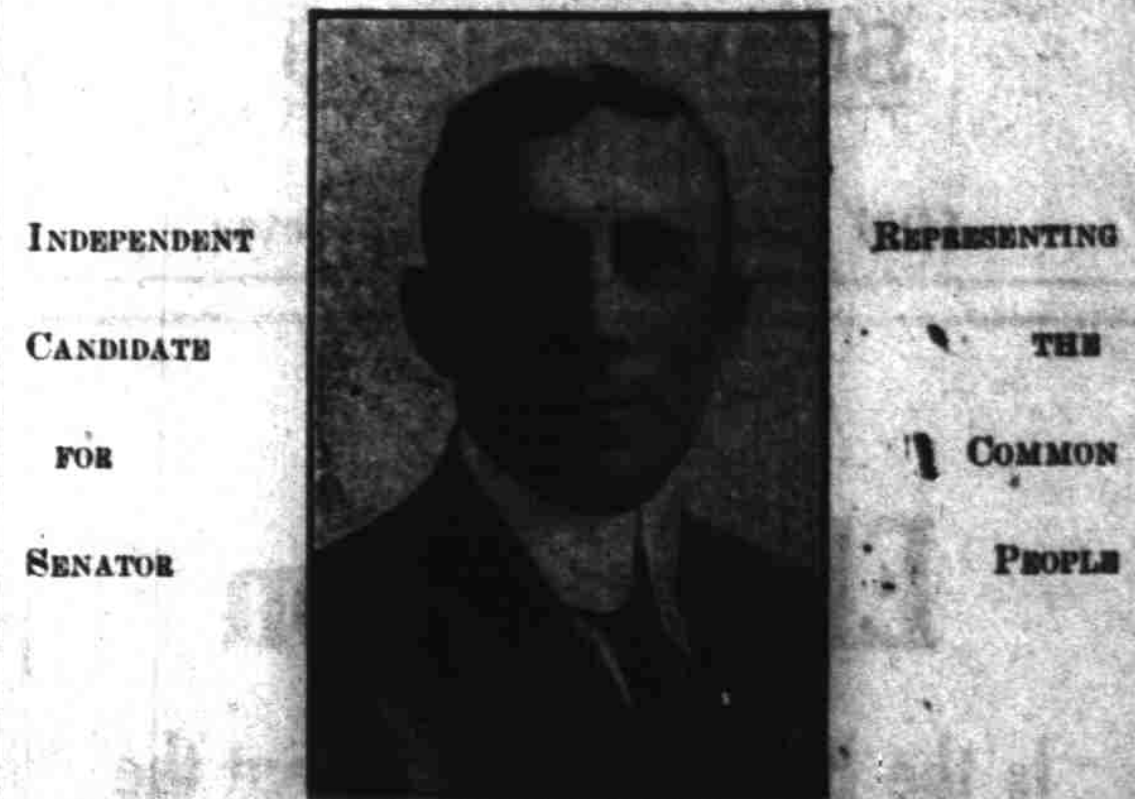

"Then, in 1898, the talons of the eagle seize Hawaii and when the Philippines are obtained this Nation says 'We don't want them, but we are going to keep them.' Nearer and nearer America is approaching. She is going to invade Japan."

The mutual effect of the East upon the West was described by Mr. Inui, showing how each loaned something to the other, and in concluding commended both the Occident and the Orient to the care of the Creator.

Representative McKinley testified before the Senate investigating committee that the three brothers of President Taft contributed $150,000 to his nomination campaign in 1908.

According to wireless messages received here the American tanker Lansing sailed from Kaula for Port San Luis on Sunday. The vessel was discharged of a cargo of fuel oil.

Plank Splinters from
Cohen's Platform

NOT CONTROLLED BY THE BIG INTERESTS

THE GREATEST MISTAKE, or what is commonly known as the banana question, seems to be exercising the minds of a great many voters.

Since I have started my series of plank splinters my mail has increased largely and I receive many inquiries as to my stand on various questions as well as words of encouragement and a good deal of advice.

A very large number of these inquiries have been upon the banana question, many wanting to know how I stood on it.

A yellow fever scourge is a terrible thing and any measure that would tend to prevent or stamp it out should be gladly welcomed. Men supposedly wise in matters of this kind gave their learned opinion to the effect that to prevent the spread of this dread disease it was necessary, among other things, to cut down the banana trees.

Under the circumstances no one should be blamed for acting on that advice. The GREAT MISTAKE was in the manner in which it was done. There was a certain high-handedness in the way the campaign was carried out as well as a disregard for the property rights.

As long as many thousands of dollars were being spent, money should have been appropriated or at least promises should have been made for the liquidation of all losses incurred by those whose property was being destroyed. There was no effort made to do this, hence the GREAT MISTAKE. I don't believe in attaching blame to the Board of Health or anyone else who carried out the orders given. Neither do I believe a vindictive policy should be adopted against anyone connected with the unfortunate affair.

I feel that everyone did what he thought was right at the time. But reparation can and should be made as speedily as possible. As soon as the Legislature meets an appropriation should be passed and made immediately available. A commission should be appointed without delay to take up every one of these claims and quick and liberal settlement made with every claimant who suffered a bona fide loss. To carry this out is one of my platform pledges.
